New Challenge To Christian Education

Reclaiming Christian Education, by Frances E. Eastman and Carolyn E. Goddard, is an interesting educational resource for use by local congregations. This book explores wholistic Christian education, basic assumptions, resources and procedures to be considered in Christian education, and insights into keeping education fresh and alive.

"In many churches at present the church school is said to be in trouble," say the authors. "Fewer students are enrolled than ten or twenty years ago. Interest is declining. Does this mean that Christian education is fading away? Or the church! NO! It means that a new challenge to Christian education confronts us."

Published by the United Church Press, "Reclaiming Christian Education" is available for $2.50 plus 75c shipping and handling from: UCBHM, Division of Publication, Periodical Dept., 132 West 31st St., NY, NY 10001.

Religious Freedom Survey Done

The April issue of A.D. magazine listed the results of a recent world-wide survey of religious freedom. In this survey, religion was defined as "that which one believes and acts upon in obedience to understandings or impulses presumed by a community to be transcendent in origin."

A.D. concluded that:

—The free exercise of religion is limited to some degree almost everywhere.

—Faithfulness to a religion can also, upon occasion, carry heavy price tags of discrimination, pain, imprisonment, or death.

—A.D. points out, however, that religious freedom, as seen in the long view, is increasing, not decreasing.

The world's ten most oppressive regimes regarding religion, according to the survey are:

1. Albania
2. North Korea
3. Saudia Arabia
4. Afghanistan

Seminary Enrollment Slows Sharply

According to the National Council of Churches, seminary enrollment is showing a sudden halt in the recent trend of steady growth.

After an average growth rate of 5.6 percent over the last seven years, seminaries enrolled only 2.4% more students in the fall of 1980 than in 1979. With 194 schools in the U.S. and Canada, 49,611 theology students were reported enrolled.

Almost 11,000, or 21.8% of the students, were women, though the growth rate for female seminarians fell from 13.7% in 1979 to 6.1% in 1980.

Blacks made up 4.4% of the total, registering a fairly normal increase of 7.9% for the year. Hispanic and Pacific/Asian-American enrollment slowed after several years of rapid growth. The 894 Hispanics registered this year make up just 1.8% of the total, while the 602 students of Pacific or Asian descent account for 1.2% of the seminary population.

Native Americans were counted by the Association of Theological Schools in the U.S. and Canada for only the second year in 1980. Their numbers rose from 52 to 64.

Pick Your Sermon By The Numbers

Rev. Richard O. Sparrow, minister of the Village Congregational Church, UCC, Northbridge, MA, with his tongue firmly planted in cheek, has suggested that sermons have ratings.

"Now that we have become accustomed to code rating for movies," he said in the church newsletter, "it might be helpful to have a similar code for rating sermons."

In suggesting the system could be patterned after the codes used in theaters across the country, he took a few jabs at the weekly sermon.

It goes like this:

G — Generally acceptable to everyone. Full of inoffensive, puerile platitudes such as "What the world needs is peace and motherhood" and "Go ye into the world and smile." This type of sermon is usually classified as "Wonderful" or "Beautiful" or "On the right track."

M — For more mature congregations. At times this type of sermon even makes the gospel relevant to today's issues — in subtle ways, of course. It is often described as "challenging" or "thought provoking," though no one intends to take any action or change any attitudes.

R — Definitely restricted to those who are not upset by the truth. This type of sermon tells it like it is. It is very threatening to the comfortable. It is most often described as "disturbing" or "controversial" and usually indicates that the preacher has an outside source of income.

X — Positively limited to those who can handle explosive ideas. This type of sermon "really socks it to 'em." It is the kind of sermon that landed Jeremiah in the well, got Amos run out of town, got Jesus hung on a cross, and set things up for the stoning of Stephen. It is always referred to as "shocking" or "in poor taste." The minister who preaches an X-rated sermon had better have his suitcase packed and his insurance paid.

The Meaning of Faith

"To plunge fearlessly into life, to walk humbly on every level, to lend a hand in the common chores of existence, to cease fearing about advantages and disadvantages, comfort and peril, to lose oneself in living a real life — this is the call of religion to everyone, the very venture and meaning of faith."

— Samuel H. Miller

Eleven Strategies For Creative Retirement

1. Look at each life stage, including retirement, as a new opportunity for satisfying living not possible before that time.
2. Approach retirement intentionally and thus awaken realistic hope.
3. Plan to do more of those things that make you feel really alive.
4. Let go of energy wasting remorse and grief so that your inner creativity can flow.
5. Be kind to your body.
6. Increase and broaden your pleasure potential, including sexual pleasure.
7. Keep your network of nurturing relationships in healthy condition.
8. Invest yourself in some cause that turns you on.
9. Enrich your inner space (reading, reflection, meditation, music, etc.)
10. Develop a viable philosophy of life that will allow you to deal creatively with your finitude. (We have an identity and that identity is somehow mysteriously rooted in the wider universe.
11. Keep creating.

Southern Alabama Area Mini-Camp

Mini-Camp Enjoyed

Some 75 young people enjoyed a Mini-Camp held July 31 - August 2, 1981 and sponsored by the Southern Alabama Area Council.

Meeting at West Point Boy Scout Camp, West Point, GA, participants represented the fellowships of 12 different area churches.

Participants included young people from the 4th grade through senior high young people.

That Triangle Again

Nothing that is worth doing can be achieved in our lifetime; therefore we must be saved by hope. Nothing which is true or beautiful or good makes complete sense in any immediate context of history; therefore we must be saved by faith. Nothing we do, however virtuous, can be accomplished alone; therefore we are saved by love. No virtuous act is quite as virtuous from the standpoint of friend or foe as it is from our standpoint. Therefore we must be saved by the final form of love which is forgiveness. —Reinhold Niebuhr been a church school teacher (of all ages!), superintendant, youth sponsor and is currently the Chairperson of the Board of Christian Education of Button Gwinnett UCC in Lilburn, GA. where she is a member.

Sue and her husband, the Rev. Don D. Hartman, live in Stone Mountain, GA with their children, Emily and Darren. As a family they enjoy music, painting, drawing, and making puppets and toys.

Mission Values Refreshing

The Rev. Tom Thomas, UCC missionary in Zambia, is growing so used to his adopted country that he has trouble remembering how different the U.S. is. "For example, I must remember," he writes, "that most Americans cannot go into their back yards and pick an 80-pound bunch of bananas. Nor can most Americans wake up in the morning and hear the squawking of layers preparing to give them an hour-old egg for breakfast."

"Certainly the American church would not even consider holding a three-day national church conference for 3,800 people in a fairgrounds where there are no sleeping or bathing accommodations and the food had to be cooked on fires. Nor would most church people consider traveling for 14 hours in a packed train in order to attend that conference."

"for a year or more one congregation worships in a half-finished church building, where the altar table is made with cinder blocks piled one on top of the other. But the building is packed to overflowing, and during worship one hardly notices that this is not a magnificent cathedral!"
